The National Whig

SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 19, 1847. FOR PRESIDENT, IN

MAJOR GENERAL ZACHARY TAYLOR OF LOUISIANA,

THE RESO

PALO ALTO, RESACA DE LA PALMA, MONTEREY.

And Buena Vista. Subject to the decision of the Whig National Convention.

WHIG NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND, WILLIAM T. GOLDSBOROUGH OF DORCHESTER COUNTY.

ROUTE FOR SALE. The Georgetown and First Ward Route for the "National Whig" is for sale. Apply immediately at this office or to Mr. Gillchrest, the agent of the National Whig.

Mr. Gillchrest, the agent of the National Whig returns his thanks to the good people of Cambridge for the kind manner in which he was received by them, during his recent visit to their hospitable town, and for the very liberal patronage which was extended to the National Whig by them, and by the members of the Convention.

See first page.

At the time Gen. Taylor was conducting the Florida war against the Seminoles, says the New Orleans National, he became remarkable among the Indians for his singular disregard of danger. He never besitated to move about unattended, and generally when riding out on important business, he kept a mile or two ahead of his escort. No matter now many Indians were prowling about, the old General seemed unconscious that they would harm him, and often, when only armed parties could escape attack, Gen. Taylor would trust himself alone nder some wide spreading tree in close proximity with the enemy, and thus circumstanced, he would eat his frugal meal, and if desirable indulge in a ound sleep. At the time the Indians were most ne to our troops, Gen. Taylor announced his determination to go from Fort King to Tampa Bay, which journey would take him through nearly ndred miles of hostile country. The jaunt was considered by every body as a most de-perate adventure. The morning for starting came, when old Zac's traveling companions, Major Bliss and a young lieutenant, began to look wishfolly around for the appearance of the escort. In due time six dragoons all saddled and bridled, made their appearance; there was a force to meet several thousand wi'd Semnoles who filled up every nook and corner between Fort King and Tampa Bay. After some hesitation one of the General's friends suggested that the escort was not sufficiently strong, and that a requisiion should be made for a greater force. Old Zac examined the six dragoons attentively for a moment, and then remarked, if the number was not sufficient two more might be added to it.

ness of fear at Buena Vista. At the critical time of the battle, when some of the best officers thought it necessary to retreat, Gen. Taylor, perfectly unmoved, would hear nothing relative to such a suggestion, remarking that when troops were fighting as his were, it was best to let them go on. In the midst of the excitement, Capt. Bragg went to Gen. Taylor, and stated it was necessary for him to withdraw from his position. He was, as ever, ordered to hold his ground; matters grew worse, and when Captain Bragg, having no fear for himself, but greatly alarmed lest his guns might meet with capture, again suggested to old Zac that unless he was reinforced he would have to fall back. Gen. Taylor cooly replied : "Go on, Capt. Bragg, I have no reinforcements, but Major Bliss and myself will support you;" and the old General immediately rode up beside the gun, and looked five thousand regulars at the enemy who at once fell into confusion, and soon retreated.

Along the Mississipi the Hoosiers, Suckers, and others of that region, have got a full head of Gen. Taylor steam on. It is customary, as the boats pass, to see a raw-boned fel low on shore hading them, with some such words as the following: "Hello thar, any feller aboard that ere hoat who ain't in favor of Gen. Taylor?" With this there is a significant rolling up of the sleeves, as if the querist intended "to pitch into" the "feller" inquired

The Circuit Court of the United States is now siting here, Judge McLean presiding. He is truly a fine looking man. Why the Whigs should put aside such a man for General Taylor, I do not see upon any other principle than availability.

The Whigs do not go to the Evening Pos or its party for advice as to whom they shall or shall not vote for President; but, if the Judge s so good looking, all at once, to Democratic eves, it is possible, that he is the profound statesman whom the Boston Post avows it is the intention of his party to nominate in 1848 It is very evident, the Democrats are desirous of getting a Whig for their candidate. But we should like to know, how it was that Mr. Polk was taken in preference to Mr. Van Buren in 1844? The latter was a much better looking man than the former

We differ with this writer. We believe Mr. Polk deliberately designed a foreign war, and that war to be with England, but when he was foiled in that design, he pounced on Mexico with the intention from the beginning of subjugating it and making the next Presidential election turn upon that question.
